

Extraterrestrial
Institute

UFO Whistleblower Case

www.extraterrestrial.institute

Unveiling the UFO Whistleblower Claims of David Grusch

David Grusch, a former U.S. military intelligence officer, has made public claims about a highly secretive UFO recovery program maintained by the U.S. federal government. Grusch asserts that the government possesses "non-human" spacecraft and the bodies of deceased pilots, obtained with the assistance of the Vatican and Five Eyes.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) and the U.S. Department of Defense (DoD) have issued statements denying the existence of verifiable evidence for extraterrestrial life or the possession of extraterrestrial materials. However, the House Committee on Oversight and Accountability has tentatively scheduled a congressional hearing on UFOs in response to Grusch's claims.

Experts and media pundits have expressed skepticism towards Grusch's claims, highlighting the lack of concrete evidence and the pattern of similar claims made by individuals in the past. Some suggest the possibility of intentional disinformation campaigns or ulterior motives behind the UFO-related revelations.

Congressional Hearing

Both NASA and the Department of Defense state that no evidence has been found for extraterrestrial life or possession of extraterrestrial materials. A congressional hearing on UFOs has been tentatively scheduled for late July 2023.

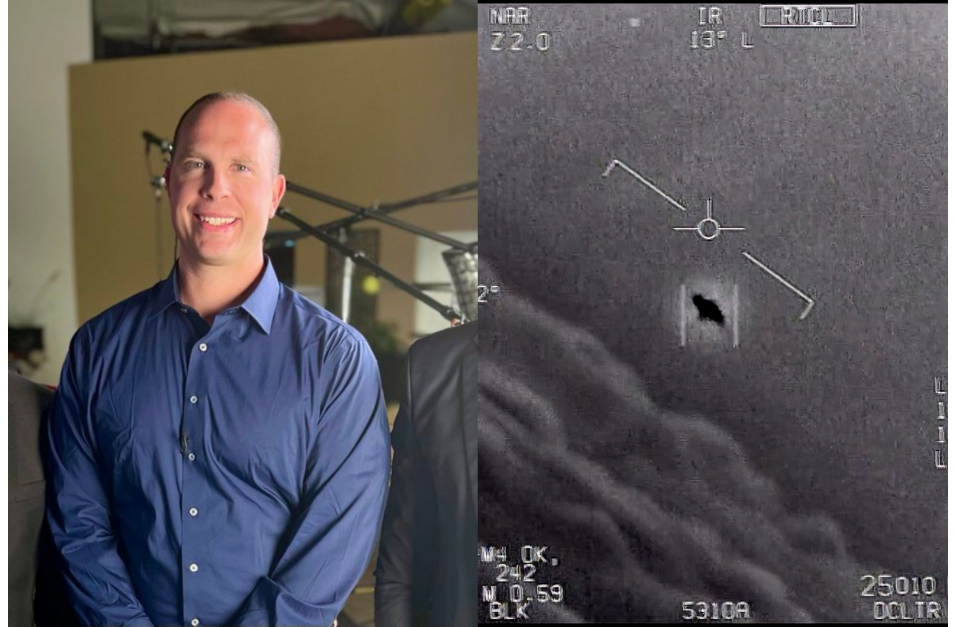

UFO Whistleblower Interview Recap

In this full interview with UFO whistleblower David Grusch, conducted by journalist Ross Coulthart, Grusch claims that the government has evidence of alien life, including spacecraft from another species that have landed or crashed. He discusses a secret government program that has hidden the truth and technology from the public, and his motivation for coming forward is a sense of service and a desire to make a difference. Grusch shares his background as a former intelligence officer, his involvement in the UAP task force, and his encounters with senior intelligence officers who provided him with evidence. He discusses the secrecy surrounding UFOs, the cover-up of crash retrievals, and the disinformation campaign targeting the American public. Grusch also addresses the authenticity of UFO videos captured by Navy aviators and suggests that the government's claim of transparency is misleading. He raises concerns about the declassification process, the involvement of private aerospace companies, and the credibility of high-level officials. Grusch mentions instances of malevolent activity and suggests that there may be a global cold war involving NHI technology. He calls for change and transparency within UFO programs and hopes that his story will unite the human family.

UFO Whistleblower Interview Highlights

- Former senior Military Intelligence officer, David Grush, claims that the government has proof of alien life, including spacecraft from another species.
- Grush reveals his background as an intelligence officer in the Air Force and his involvement in the UAP task force, highlighting his access to classified programs.
- He alleges the existence of a crash retrieval program for non-human origin vehicles and suggests that the government has been concealing the truth and technology.
- Grush emphasizes his motivation as a sense of service and a desire to make a difference, rather than seeking personal gain.
- He mentions encounters with intact spacecraft and dead pilots, but cannot provide classified documents as evidence.
- The whistleblower discusses a 90-year cover-up of UFOs, mentioning the involvement of the Vatican and the Roswell incident.
- He criticizes the changing stories and additional programs created by the U.S. Air Force to explain UAP crashes, claiming that a disinformation campaign is targeting the American public.
- Grush believes that some UFO sightings are of extraterrestrial origin, referencing the Tic Tac incident and the authenticity of UFO videos captured by Naval aviators.

UFO Whistleblower Interview Highlights

- He expresses concerns about the limited declassification process, the involvement of private aerospace companies, and the denials from high-level officials.
- The whistleblower suggests that non-human intelligences may have harmed or killed people and raises the possibility of a long-standing, multi-decade cold war with adversaries.
- He discusses the global impact of non-human intelligence encounters, mentioning the exploitation of NHI technology by geopolitical rivals like Russia and China.
- The whistleblower highlights the secrecy and potential agreements between governments and NHI, questioning the lengths the US government may go to protect these secrets.
- Grush's credibility is discussed, noting confirmation of his identity by multiple sources and the recognition of his allegations by the Inspector General.
- The whistleblower emphasizes the importance of change, transparency, and the sharing of advanced technology with the rest of the world.
- Grush believes that non-human intelligences have allowed humanity to make its own choices and hopes his story will promote unity among humans.

After Grusch - Need to Know

In this YouTube video, the hosts (Bryce Zabel and Ross Coulthart) discuss the impact of David Grusch's exclusive interview and the lack of response from the Pentagon or intelligence community. Grusch, a former intelligence officer, has been confirmed as a credible UAP whistleblower by the Senate Select Committee for Intelligence. The hosts emphasize the importance of Congress properly deposing Grusch and following up on his leads. They speculate that addressing the UAP issue may be a gradual process, possibly involving dueling hearings between committees. The hosts also discuss the availability of the interview footage and clarify that there is no conspiracy preventing its release, but rather a matter of copyright enforcement. They express their desire for transparency and urge Congress to hold the defense department and intelligence community accountable for potential cover-ups. The discussion further covers the issue of alleged recoveries of UAP by private aerospace companies, intellectual property rights, and the potential involvement of Blackwater-style security teams in crash retrievals. The hosts also reflect on their journalistic responsibility to present all relevant information, including the existence of bodies related to UAP. They discuss the significance of these bodies in proving extraterrestrial life and advancing technology. Lastly, the speaker raises questions about the reasons behind the secrecy and disinformation surrounding the UFO phenomenon.

- The hosts discuss the impact of David Grusch's exclusive interview and the lack of response from the Pentagon or intelligence community.
- David Grusch has been confirmed as an urgent and credible UAP whistleblower by the Senate Select Committee for Intelligence.
- Grusch has provided evidence to different committees under oath and with high-level security clearances, and other witnesses have supported his claims.

After Grusch - Need to Know: Key Highlights

- There may be oversight committee hearings, but some aspects may be held in closed sessions due to security classification.
- The public and research community must press for a proper investigation of Grush's credible and urgent allegations.
- The seriousness of the criminal nature of the allegations against Grush should be properly investigated by Congress.
- There may be dueling hearings between the Senate Intelligence Committee and the House Committee.
- Current events may cause distractions among members of Congress, but some are motivated to uncover the truth.
- Legislation is being proposed to increase transparency from private aerospace companies regarding UAP-related technology.
- The full interview with Grush is copyrighted by News Nation, who funded the production, and they have the discretion to air it when they choose.
- There is no conspiracy preventing the video from being shown; it's a matter of copyright enforcement.
- Efforts were made to ensure a backup copy of the interview in case of potential interference.
- There are parts of the interview that have not been seen, but they clarify that there may not be seven hours of top-quality footage.
- The speaker discusses the events leading up to the interview with Dave Grush and the precautions taken to capture the interview on tape, including concerns about potential arrests.
- They confirm that they have spoken to individuals with direct knowledge of a secret UFO program and the retrieval of alien technology and bodies by the US government.
- It is acknowledged that while there may not be seven hours of top-quality interview footage, there are still unseen parts that could provide further insights.
- The speaker addresses the issue of skepticism and criticism surrounding Grush's body language, expressing the importance of hearing his testimony under oath in a public hearing to address such concerns.
- There is mention of the possibility of dueling hearings between the Senate Intelligence Committee and the House Committee and the question of determining the appropriate venue for Grush to testify.